Seminar

Time:

Tuesdays 8:30 - 11:30am

Description:

This course offers an intensive study of the drama of the English Renaissance and of the literary, cultural and historical contexts in which the plays were produced. We will read plays written for a range of contexts, public and private, and in a variety of genres, including tragedy, comedy, romance and court masque. Class discussion will include themes such as: class mobility, sexuality and gender identity, the rise of humanism, kingship and queenship, concepts of history and periodization, the anti-theatrical prejudice, magic and the supernatural, academic, medical, and scientific discourses, legal and judicial authority, religious, national, and racial difference, religious reform and colonial expansion.
